Russian companies are hogging the leading search results for queries like "mass murder," "gay," "scandal" and "church," according to the website IP GEO, which tracks Google search results across the globe. Russian companies now occupy almost half of the top 10 search results for all queries related to mass murder, government corruption, fraud and law. Google, Google.ru and Russian search engines Yandex.ru and Yandex.com dominate the list. The site's founding members are all from Russia. The top search results are likely to be very different in other countries, as they are in the U.S. Google is the dominant search engine in much of the world and the world leader for many queries. For example, here in the U.
