I'm using sublime. I choose a file called MainWindow.gwt.xml and load it in the code view using Ctrl + Shift + P. 3. The result in a browser will look like this: 4. The only problem is: I need to have these files in the sources folder. Without "folder", it works, but I can't preview my changes and I need to wait to be complete to check the result. 5. Any ideas? Thanks a lot! A: You'll need to first add your gwt sources folder to the classpath. Then you need to add gwt-dev.jar to the war-file. If you go into Sublime Text and add the gwt sources to the build settings, Sublime will read it automatically. Q: jquery: unknown type error what is that error? TypeError: 'undefined' is not a function (evaluating 'this.value = ($(this).attr('value')? $(this).attr('value') : '')') var customSettings; $(document).on('change', '.settings-dropdown', function(){ if($(this).attr('value')!== 'Custom') { $(this).removeAttr('value'); } var value = $(this).attr('value'); if(value!== 'Custom') { this.value = value; } this is the part that causes the error. $(this).attr('value') What is the difference between using function on.attr('value') and using it on this.value? A: There is no this.value. Either assign to this.value: this.value = value; or use a call to the value method: $(this).val(value); A: this is the part that causes the error Well, the error does not come from that line, you have the whole this.value =.... What is the difference between using function on.attr('value') and using it on this.value? It is a difference, you are using different context: With attr, you are using the jQuery element, and not the this from within the handler.

I am a beginner in GPS software and would like to make a 1-track RV trip from Amarillo, TX. I need to have the computer's own GPS receiver up and running so I can use iGO8 software. I have it up and running, but have problems downloading maps. Is there an email you can be. Best Navigator software: Cheap Navigator software for Windows?-Navigator® NT, NAV4000, NAV5000, NAV600. with NAVteq, Garmin, Magellan,.Q: Presenting modal view controller from app delegate The app delegate has a map, the user taps a button in the view, that maps controller needs to present itself modally over the map, from the map viewcontroller. I'd like to be able to set the modal presentation style from the delegate as there are different styles and I want to only present one that works for all. Is this possible? A: Not sure what you mean by your question exactly. You can present a UIViewController in a modal fashion using - presentViewController:animated:completion:. You would need to use - presentViewController:animated:completion: at the appropriate point. I assume that what you want to do is make the UIViewController that is presented modal take over the entire screen. That would be done using - presentViewController:animated:completion:, like so: [self presentViewController:vc animated:YES completion:NULL]; UPDATE: You can access the UIViewController presented in a modal view by the UIViewController presented in a modal view using the UIViewController stack. To do so: UIViewController *vc = UIApplication.sharedApplication.keyWindow.rootViewController; Then you can figure out if it is the right view controller by checking to see if it is the previous or next view controller on the stack. I think that you should be able to figure it out from there. UPDATE2: To determine which style you want to use for the modal view, you can call - setModalPresentationStyle:animated: on the UIViewController you want to present. - (void)buttonPressed:(UIButton*)sender { UIStoryboard* sb = [UIStoryboard story 6d1f23a050
