A simple and sensitive LC-MS/MS method was developed and validated for the quantification of cefazolin in human plasma. Chromatographic separation was achieved using a high-performance liquid chromatograph equipped with a C18 column, MS operated in the selected reaction monitoring mode and the analyte was monitored at m/z 254.1 → m/z 141.1. Separation was achieved with a mobile phase consisting of acetonitrile-water (60:40, v/v) containing 0.1% formic acid and with the flow rate of 0.6 mL/min. The calibration curve exhibited good linearity over the concentration range of 0.50-200 µg/L with correlation coefficient greater than 0.999. The lower limit of quantification was 0.50 µg/L. The intraday and interday precision values ranged from 2.5-10.1 and 4.6-13.3%, respectively, and the accuracy was within 5.4-12.9% (relative error). The method was successfully applied to a pharmacokinetic study of intravenous cefazolin.Q: EF 4.0 Code First - mapping manually I was wondering if anyone here has used Entity Framework 4.0 Code First before and knows how to map the column manually in a database? Normally you could do it using theObjectContext like this: Project.DataContext.MyTable.ColumnName So I was wondering if there is a way to do it without using theObjectContext like this MyTable.ColumnName I was wondering if anyone here has done this before? Thanks! A: In your DbContext derived class override the OnModelCreating method: public class MyContext : DbContext { protected override void OnModelCreating(DbModelBuilder modelBuilder) { // This method is called after the Entity Model is built. modelBuilder.Entity().
